On May 12, 2015, a train carrying 238 passengers and 8 crew members derailed while traveling on tracks within the City and County of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. As a result, eight passengers died, many others were injured, and all were placed at risk of death or serious bodily injury. At the time of the derailment, the Defendant, Brandon Bostian, was the engineer in control of the movement of the train. The train was traveling at a rate of speed in excess of that permitted under federal law.

More specifically, at approximately 9:10 p.m. on the above date, the train, identified as Amtrak Train No. 188, departed the 30th Street Station located within Philadelphia. The train's route began in Washington, D.C., and the ultimate destination was New York City, N.Y. Bostian was an experienced engineer who was aware of the route and the fact that there were speed limits throughout the route. Bostian caused the train to travel at a speed of 80 miles per hour, the speed limit, between the North Philadelphia Station and the Frankford

Junction. The train then approached a curve at the Frankford Junction, at which point the speed limit was reduced to 50 miles per hour. Instead of decelerating the train, Bostian accelerated the train's movement to a speed of 106 miles per hour. As a direct result of the violation of the lawful speed limit, at approximately 9:20 p.m., the train was unable to navigate the curve, "jumped" the tracks, and derailed.

The derailling of the train caused the deaths of eight passengers: Laura Finamore; James Gaines; Abid Gilani; Robert Gildersleeve; Derrick Griffith; Rachel Jacobs; Giuseppe Piras; and Justin Zemser. Additionally, the derailling of the train risked death or serious bodily injury to the other passengers on the train, and there were passengers who suffered serious bodily injury. A list of the names of the passengers on the train at the time of the derailment is appended hereto as Exhibit A.

The information recited herein was provided by Detective Kenneth Rossiter, who investigated the case and learned this information through witness interviews and documents obtained by search warrants. Also, information was provided to Detective Rossiter by Cassandra Johnson, Mechanical Engineer for the National Transportation Safety Board. Ms. Johnson recovered information from the events data recorder from the train after the accident. That factually verified data showed that the train was traveling at a speed of 106 miles per hour while traveling in the 50-mph zone and decelerated briefly to 103 miles per hour as the emergency brake was engaged, and then recording stopped as a result of the derailment.
